The steady growth of the gaming industry has resulted in the advent of an entirely new market of video game streaming. However, the hefty commission fees on streaming platforms can sometimes be quite daunting for streamers, as they can reach up to 20%.

DeStream is a decentralized financial ecosystem for streamers that aims to disrupt the existing streaming industry. This global platform will simplify all the additional operations streamers need to carry out while in the course of their creative work.

The platform will support sophisticated add-ons that will allow advertisers to reach streamers, viewers to request more diversified actions from their idols. The streamers will thus be able to generate revenue with considerably lower commissions than they ever had before and focus on creating high-quality content.
